Short answers

Introduction

"Do you like chocolate?" "Yes, I do."

Definition

Short answers are brief responses to a variety of closed questions.

Construction

'to be'	Other verbs
'Yes' + subject + 'to be'	'Yes' + subject + 'to do'
Is she French?	Does she work in a bank?
Yes, she is.	Yes, she does.
'No' + subject + 'to be' + 'not'	'No' + subject + 'to do' + 'not'
le che Eveneh?	Dana aha wasib in a hasiba
Is she French?	Does she work in a bank?

Note that

1. In affirmative forms, we don't use contractions: Yes, I'm.

2. The correct forms for 'have' and 'have got' are:

Do you have any children? Yes, I do./No, I don't.

Have you got any children? Yes, I have./No, I haven't.

Remember to use 'to do' with main verbs:

Do you like tea? Yes. I like. Yes. I do.

Uses

We use them in conversation in different tenses. Short answers are more polite than 'Yes' or 'No' alone.

Sometimes, we add more information:

"Does she work in a bank?"

"No, she's in advertising."/"No, she doesn't. She's in advertising." [these are better]

Examples

"Are you tired?" "No, I'm not. Are you?" "Yes, I am! Let's take a break!"

"Is it raining again?" "Yes, it is. But it's nice and warm."

[&]quot;Does she work in a bank?"

[&]quot;No." [too short and direct]

[&]quot;No, she doesn't". [more polite]
