

Definition of a quantifier

Quantifiers

Quantifiers are a kind of determiner. They can consist of a single word or a phrase. They are used with countable or uncountable nouns to give information about quantities or amounts. Here are some examples:

all
no
none

much
many
a lot of either neither

both

few
little something

some
any anyone

each
every nowhere

Determiners

Determiners are used in front of nouns to give us more information. There are different kinds, including articles, numbers, demonstratives, quantifiers and possessive adjectives. For example:

I have two children. My daughter is six and my son is four.

I like this book; it has a lot of information about the city.
