Verbs for sports and leisure activities

We go skiing every winter.

When we talk about sport in a general way, we usually use the verb 'do':

Do you do any sport?

Or, occasionally:

Do you practise any sport?

However, 'practise' has a different meaning. 'To practise' is to do something, perhaps regularly, in order to maintain or improve our performance or specific skills, maybe before a particular event or competition. For example:

Footballers practise taking free kicks.

He's giving his first presentation so he needs to practise using PowerPoint. She's doing well in her English course but doesn't have much opportunity to practise.

I practise cricket every week. ★I play cricket every week. Sometimes we practise our batting or bowling. ✓

I'm practising tennis today. 🔀

I'm playing tennis today. I'm going to practise backhands because that's my weakness.

To speak about named sports and activities, we use a specific verb. For example:

to swim

to cycle

to run

to climb

to ski

Do you do any sport? Yes, I swim and cycle.

To go

We use the verb 'to go' for lots of sports as well as other activities. Here are some examples:

'to go' + gerund	'to go for a' + noun
running cycling climbing swimming hiking skiing horse-riding skateboarding fishing dancing shopping	a run a bike ride a swim a walk a stroll a drink a meal

We tend to use 'to go' when we give extra information:

To play

<pre><?xml:namespace prefix = "o" ns = "urn:schemas-microsoft-com:office:office" /></pre>	to play
Some competitive sports, especially those played with a ball	football tennis golf squash cricket rugby

[&]quot;Do you do any sport?"

[&]quot;Yes, I ski and climb. I go climbing twice a week and I'm going skiing with friends in February."

Games Note that we also say 'to have a game of'	chess Monopoly draughts cards
Console/computer games	PlayStation/X-box games on a PlayStation/X-box
Musical instruments	the piano the violin the drums the guitar

To do
